Specimen English Votes. Hondon Whitehall Roview I

A poor aged agricultural laborer residing at Birdily, in the County of Gioucester, was carramol a few days ago, "Will you giva your vote to Mr. Yorke, John!" kindly inquired a gentlaman. "No, I shan't gie my toat to noa'boly, thu' be the fust woat as fver I hat, and I shall kip un vor mysei"." "Now, John," continued the gontlaman, am sure you will give your vote to Mr. Yorka" "No'ah, no'ah, I telis ee atraight it be the fust vont as iver I ha' had gid to I, and I shan't gie un away to anybody, but I shall kip un vor mysel'.

In another parish the squire has issued a little leadet to the "Hodge family" headed "Vote for your friends." The leaflet then tells them how they may discover thair friends by the answers those supposed friends may give to the test questions. What with tracts, loaflets, lectures, books, and orations if wige is perplexed, toased, and confused. A farmer said to his carter, when he brought in the keys of his stable, "Well, Bill, who bist a gwan to vote for?" "Well, mayeter," replied Bill, "I ba' read the squire's aarmont, and I be a gwan to taka bis advice, and to voat vorme friends. "And who be um, Hill!" Hill scratched his head, looke I remarkably cute, and exclaimed: "Well, mayster, I can't exactly any, but you le one on uni." Origin of the Whale.

Popular Science Monthly. Professor Flower remarked, pertinently te a description by Dr. Siruthers in the biological section of the British association, of the Tny whale, that the whale carried its potigree on its own body and in every part of its structure. It had been thought that mammals might have passed through an aquatic ant marine stage before they came to the land. But observations of the anatomy of the whale showed that this could not have been the case. There could be no question whatever that the whale had been derived from a four-footed animal.

It was a characteristic of a mammal to have a hairy covaring. Whales were at one tima thought to be an exception, but it was shown, in almost avery one that had been examined, that at some period of Its life it ruust hava had a rudimentary covering, which was generally found in the neighbortood of the upper lip; that covering was functioniess and often lost before birth. Another remarkable feature was the teeth. All these whales were furnished with a set of teeth, rudimentary but complete, and not charcteristic of the fish, but of a more completely developed land mammal. These teets ontirely vanished at an early period, sometimes before birth; and they were entirely functionians

FUTTENGURH, INDIA, Nov. 21th, 1885. DEAR INTERIOR: - We are pleasantly settled and at work et the second meeting, of whet we trust will prove a long "series," full of hiersing to all concerned.

We left Shahjehanpore by the midnight train of the day after our meeting closed, and were back in Lucknow by sunrice. We remained there during the day-giving the girls at opportunity of seeing what they had entirely missed; or seen, at best, with fever stricken eyes, heavy with the hateful our precious Lucknow visit. This time we It was like a "first visit" for freehuess and

We drove straight to the Residency, of a call by the Baptlet church here, end will in Lucknow, and here we picked up a native guide, who spoke Raglish Intelligibly, and knew perfectly every spot of interest we wished to inspect. Under his directions we visited each outpost around the wondarful entrenchment, where every defender his visit, years ago, suggested the erection was so gailantly heid, and it was done. One -Dr. Joseph B. Graham, Stark Fish and of these touches the deepest chord in the others have erected a souble line of tele. observer's heart. It is called the Martigraph wires in town, for the purpose of mere Post. Sixty-five boys from the Martimere College, in the suburbs-some of them mere children-hravely held this exand shared the burdens of the heroic defence, with the constancy of the bravest men. Another bastion is shown where an spared for the work. Je sle Brown, her -Mr. Robt. L. Crow is a popular as well honored name-wife of one of the soldiers

The heaped fragments of the old maga zine ile, just as they were left by the exploquest, to do this work. He had been mor tally wounded and knew that he was a dy ing man. So instead of cumbering the figing party on the final retreat, he steadfastly refused to be moved, and died like Sampon among the I'hilistines, elaying more than 200 mountaineers in the explosion his dying hand had lighted, as he lay in reach of the train prepared for him by his comrailes before he ieft.

Every foot of the ground has its own pathetic bistory. There are few spots on earth like it, for its multum in parro of thrill-

Then we went to old Dil-Khoosha palace where the sainted soldier, Sir Henry Haverlock, expired on the retreat. His remalna were taken onto Alum Bagh-a few miles further - and there they now lie, under a plain shaft of brown stone, where an epltaph vainiy attempts to describe the man he was. His statue adorns Trafaigar Square under shadow of the mightly cniumn reared to the honor of England's greatest admiral.

Then we went to the Martimere Coilege; the Sanh Nuji'; the Motes Mahui, the Secuniler Bigh, each of the last three deacribed in the annals of those perilous times as "stormed" by the relieving forces When one trads the centence, how little it means! It was "taken" by the "93d Highlanders' or the 4th Sibbs" or the "Marine Brigade," sounds so simple and easy until one stands before the frowning loop holed rains and thinks it all over -slowly. Then the subject looms and grows apece, until the men who did it seem no less than giants in conrege and in power. It is more and more wonderfui to me what human heroiem can accomplish. tien. Claude Martin came to India in the ranks end rose in the service of the Kings of Oade to the position of a "General" with enormous wealth. His magnificent palace he left for a callege -and as such, amply endowed, it is now doing a fine editcational service. The "General" was born in Lyone, France, and fived and died in the Romish faith, if he had any. "Pray for my soui" appeals mutely to the traveler, who descending to the vault below the greet central assembly room, reads the epitaph on his square marble tomb. Would it do any good, I wonder? It is too risky for a wice man to try. Better far-to eay like Stephen-"Lord Jesus receive my spirit." Then, no need to send back a pileout wail to survivors, if perchance "a fervent effectual prayer" of some "righteous man" may avail to mitigate the purgatorial pange. It is a fearful risk for on immortal man to run. Poor oid "Generai Cieude" achemed and made money; gained and reveiled; fought cocks for colonsai stakes and won them off his royal mester; end when he came to die made a most excellent will in behalf of postarity. Many do the hust in the great assembly room above his vault. No one knew what happened when he came to die. Personally I grow more hopeful, as I get older, and my thoughts of the dear God grow mellow and less tinged with the fierce theology of my frightened hoyhood. Praise the LORD! At last my promise to Gaorge, as abe lay burning up with the fever-to bring her hack to Lucknow and let her see all the 'sights' when sha got well -was redeemed. and we were ready to leave the heautiful Queen Station of Eutera India, for such, truiy, is Lucknow. When Government was crystalizing a cheme for writing uniformly the Roman Urdu, by common consent, the historical piaces, of deepest interest, wars left, many malady, by which satan sought to embitter of them untouched by the innovation. Lucknow was thus spared the indignity of enjoyed everything without drawback, and being speiled Laknau, which is the correctly scientific, and unspeakably ridiculous transformation it would have undergone. So Cawapore escaped Kanpur by the skin course. This is the loadstone of attraction of the teeth. Our good friends, Mr. and Mrs. Morgan-in whose house we had rooms while at the Dusserah meetings a month before -received us for the day most hospitably. A few hours run on the O. & R. R. brought us again to Cawnpore, and a little was a hero. The Prince of Wales, during after midnight we were safe in hed at the 'Empresa" Hotel southed to slumber by the murmur of a fall in a lock of the Ganges canal -running 50 yards away.

Anecdote of Josh Billings. The late Josh Billings was once on a to while away the time, proposed a geme of whlei. A fourth man was wanted, and a gentieman sitting near was requested to take a hand.

"No; I do not play. But there is an oid fellow who is a capital player; try him"pointing to the "oid feilow," who sat de murely on the seat in front.

"Good piayer, is he?" said the commercial man. "Then we'll have some fun with oid Hayneed;" and accorting the quiet farmer-like passenger, the young man, whose cheek was his fortune, blandly said: 'My venerable friend, we would like to have you take a hand in a game of cards with us, just to while away the time. Wili you oblige me?"

Looking the young man in the face a mo ment, "old Hayseed" answered, "Ya as we'll be there in abaout three hours." "You don't understand, my friend; w want you to take a hand-" "Ya-ar, the stand o' corn is very gnod oncommon handsome." The commercial man was annoyed. 'Speak a little louder," suggested the gentieman in the seat behind; "he is somewhat hard of hearing."

"My friend!" shouted the young fellow. 'will-you-take-a-hand-in-a-game? "Yaa, game le oncommon plenty; al you want is-"

Oh, go to the devil! You're as deef at a posi!" and the man of cheek subsided, amid the laughter of his companions.

When Lanesborough was reeched, "old Hayreed" arose to depart, when he quietly handed his card to the commercial man, who sai glum in his seat, and in a particularly comical way remarked: "Young man, when you travel on your cheek, don't get hay-seed in your eye. See?"

"The young fellow gianced at the card. The superscription was-"Josh Billings." Josh got off the train, and the man of cheek had to find a ceat in another car to escape the "run" on him by his companions - [Elitor's Drawer, in Harper's Magazine for January.

The lime taste in the water from a new cietern can be avoided in this way: After comenting, before the plaster is thoroughly dry put on a strong solution of salt and aium, then lower a kettie of burning charcoal and allow it to be consumed. This will form a hard, flinty rock surface, which will not crack and will protect the water from any unpleasant taste.

> [To the Editor of the Interior Journal.] FRANKFORT, Jan. 4, '85 .- As some censure has been cast upon me for some remarks made by me in regard to the resolution introduced in the democretic caucus, in reference to local legislation, I furnish you the aubstance of my remarke upon that resolution: Mr. Chalriuan - I am opposed to the resolution. We are the representatives of a free people and I am in favor of being free We are here in a dual capacity. In our aggregate capacity we represent the grand old Commonwealth of Kentucky. It is our duty to enact such laws as would redound to her general welfare and to repeal such as are detrimental to her general interests. And we are also here to represent our immediate constituents -the people of the respective counties whose votes sent us here, and whose money pays us, and they are entitled to some consideration at our hands. I will admit private legislation is a great nuisance, and is the main cause of a prolonged session and greatly enhances the expenses of State government, but es I undereland the resolution it puts the members of this house upon their knees before a committee, begging a consideration of their hilis -an attitude that the representatives of a free people should never scoupy. And there are twenty republican members in this House, who have no volce in this caucue, and what right have we to fetter them and to say that they and their con-tituents shall be bound by a resolution they had no voice in passing? I am not here to represent the democratic party, I am here to represent the people of the Siate of Kentucky and the people of Lincoln county, whether democrata or republicans, white or black. For years we have condemned par ty legislation in the halls of Congress. Tis equally obnoxious in State legislation. The gentieman from Louisville (Mr. Read) says "not many of us will come back here." That does not epply to me, I came here by a mejority treading upon the heels of 1,000 and that majority was so united and de voted and the minority so bitter as to indicase clearly that I have a fee, simple tile to my ceat. W. P. WALTON.

Taktro his one from Mr. Cleveland, Gov. knott has sent his message to the Legislature in a document nearly as iong. apprenticeship as paragrapher on a paper, which believes and enforces the maxim most anapleionaly. that "brevity is the soie of wit," might help such feilows amazingly. But the governor's message contains much that is worthy of consideration, besides its statistics, and our legislators would do well to digest it carefully and adopt most of the suggestions submitted. The Governor launches forth after congratulating the hody upon the favorable anspices under which it meets, both in State and National affaire, into the giaring and mischievous defects of our financial system. He presents a table to show that there was an actual deficit in the treasury of $293,185,52 on the 30th of June and that unless something is done it will have grown to $313,-685 52 hy next June, due to bad assessment, an increase of the school fund, which is now larger per capita than in any of the States hat three and the increase in the amounts for criminal prosecutions and he should have filled it after it was given public charities.

The remedy for the deficit le a thorough revision of our revenue laws and in the incremed powers of the Board of Equalization, which he takes occasion to endorse and compliment, and to suggest an amendment to the act creating it as "not to suthorize or permit the board to make a reduction in the assessment in any instance whatever, but to require it to adopt as a standard, the highest rate per cent. upon its actual cash value at which the returns for the year shall show each species of property to have been assessed anywhere in the State, and bring the assessments of all property of each variety up to the ratio thus established for the class to which it belongs." He further recommends "a nniform and fair assessment of all the taxabia property in the State, which shail be just, alike to all portions of the Commonwealth and all ciases of the community; the enppression of all unjust exonerations; the prevention of naneceseary delinquencies; the prompt collection of the revenue; the reiegation to the counties of all expenses which should be borne by them; a uniform scale of compensation to all public officers of whatever grade, or locality, for the performance of similar services, and the more certain and rigorous punishment of all frauds upon the public treasury."

The improved condition of the penitan tiary under Warden Taylor and the advan tageons contract with the Mason-Foard Company whereby the State receives a net amount of $33,333 for the lease of all the convicts for four years, are subjects of gratnlation upon which the governor dilates with animation. He reports fair progress on the branch peniteotiary, which wili be a model of its ciass when completed. Cogent reasons for permitting the Board of Directors to choose and remove at will the warden of the penitentiary are submitted Equity Court. and ought to be acted upon favorably.

In regard to pieuro-pneumonia he is very emphatic in opposition to the State being required to pay for animals infected and killed by order of her officers, and lustead recommends a law making it a felony for father. anyone to bring into or keep in the State any cattle, knowing them to be intected with the dire we and requiring the county judge upon complaint on oath, to have infected animais killed and their carcasses burned at the expense of the owner. The imdroved condition of the Common School System and the increase of the per capita 25 cents for the year, is noted with pride and although the $1.65 le far from sufficient to sustain a competent system of edncation, it has probably reached the limit by State taxation and must be supplemented by other means. The State College is a better condition than ever and is entirely ont of debt. The total number of pupil children in the State is 623,928 and the amount allowed for them is $1,029,481 20 There are 2,550 ignatics, feebie minded, deaf and dumb and blind people on the charge of the State and their maintenance coet $296,832 67, in addition to which must be added $80,298.70 for pauper idiots, &c. The governor takes occasion to praise all the superintendents of the eleemosynary institutions, but the one at the Lexington Lunatic Asylum, a very noticable omission, as well as just we presume. A State Board of Charities is suggested to deal with the institutions, whose duty will be to watch over them and their conduct and make recommendations as to their needs and improvements. He gives the railroad commission a boost and commends its suggestion for a law fixing the maximum rate for consumers of coal in any part of the State at 10 cente a bushel. FROM THE NATIONAL CAPITAL.

Special Correspondence of The Interior Journal.] WASHINGTON, Jan. 1st. - Senator Beck bounced into the silver question before it was fairly open. His idea was to skim the cream from the discussion by an early stroke and give himself a good springboard start for the Senate two years hence. It was this that spurred into his beforebreakfast start rather than a desire to antagonize the administration. There is nothing noyel or new in his wide spreading speech, but it is a well arranged collection of facts bearing upon our finance, strongly put. Mr. Beck wants to be Senator again and wante it bad. Most of his associations and affiliations are here and he would feel awkward with the harness off. He is going to do his level best to come back. He will neglect no opportunity to reinstate himself in popular favor and pave the way for hie re-election. So far there is only one man mentioned in connection with the coming contest that could down the Senator from John G. Carllele. If the fight were to come off this winter the Speaker would knock the Senator out in one round and it would not be much of a round either. At precent I think the place would be pleasing to Mr. Carline provided he could get it without a grand scuffe. I think he would like to get out of the way of the young men of his district and give them a chance. Two years from now he may change his mind and stand for the Speakership again-the presidency or something of that sort. In the mean time it would be a cold day indeed when Mr. Beck does not lay a wire looking to the succession. Heretofore he aiways received succor from western Kentucky but down in that direction they say they are not going to be suckers any more. But their trouble is in cetting up a men that will "size up" the Senstorial cioth.

"Bili" Lindsay is big enough but some say that he has lost his local habitation, and name and could not raily the boys from "eend to eend." Lindsay would fill the bill If they would put him is. He is in the prime of life and at the acme of his mental and physical powers. The dlameter of his brain le deep enough to take ln any question of politics and State craft that would suggest Itself. Wa never know how to appreciate such men until they are dead or leave the State. His eocial qualities and unassuming style would bein him immensely in Washington. Western Kentucky will not soon look upon his like. This is said by a man who has opposed bim in the past and may again-if be electe.

Coi. W. N. Sweeney, of Owensboro, seems to have more local attachments at present than any of the West End luminaries. He is a good lawyer, a well read, thinking man and a poor politician. But there are men in the Senate not his intellectual equals. Kenzie pawing the earth and prancing about, but they can't make it in a four mite spurt. They are beautiful for a quarter start. Col. Thoe. L. Jones calls McKenzie that "Highfalootin feliow" That is "Too"

Judge Pryor, of the Appellate Court, would make a superb Senator and your district has a good pair to draw to-McCreary and Durham. Stanford, herself, has a man, Col. Then. P. Hill, whose intellect is not overtopped in the State. Col. Brecklnridge would make a first-class Senator, but he is overshadowed by Blackburn and Beckbetween the devil and the deep blue sea as it were-and can not show for what he is worth. With as much ability as either one of them, to say the least of him, but with less self assertion, he must bide his time. Biackbarn is freehly elected and oniy fifteen miles away, while Beck is in ear shot of the "Silver Tongue." Mr. Beck is a man of ability and broad experience, but thestory you hear "that the Senate could not do without hlm" le all romance and moonshine. In reality i: is rot, It is a and commentary on the Grand Old Commonwealth to say that she could not furnish another Senator to size up to our "Joe." Mr. Reck is a very useful man, but they must not depreciate the quality of onr home mackerel lo that manner. We might go further and do worse than to send up such men as George M. Davie, of Louinvlile; Col. Caldwell, of Russeliville; Henry Barnett, of Paducah; Judge Grace, of the "Purchase;" Judge West, o' Cynthians; Col. Lockbart, of Paris; "Jim" Bryan, of Covington, or "Bob" Nelson, of Newport With any one of these we would have an "average" Senator. With George M. Davie Hardware, we would have something gilt edged. And what is the matter with John Young Brown, of Henderson,

Hon. Harvey Watterson, author of the "Oid Fogy" letters in in the Capital for the winter. He has been coming here every session for half a century. He was in Congress over forty years ago and was Minister to United States Columbia under Jackson. His son, the brilliant editor of the Courier Journal, was born on Pennsylvania Avenue, near the intersection of Toird street-almost under the shadow of the Capital. MOSES.

A decided sensation was produced in Phlia lolphia social circles recently by the return, to life, so to speak, of the benutiful Jessie Moncrieff, daughter of Mr. Anthony Moncrieff, the Philadelphia banker and well known traveler and dilettante. The young lady's exceeding grace and beauty, her rare accomplishments, together with the remarkable and almost incredible adventure she has gone through, promise to make her the belle of the season, if her jealous, doting parents can be persuaded to spare her to society. Her adventures indeed are almost as strange as those of Casper Hauser, but not nearly so sad in their course, and happy instead of tragio in their ending. It makes one almost shudder to think of what might have been the sequel of her long imprisonment beneath an impenetrable incognito, contrived with demoniao art, but for the sudden accident which termiuated it: but as it is, she has burst upon her parents and ecciety like Minerva, full-armed with joyous youth, beauty, culture, and the singular charm of wonder and eagerness for the enjoyment of the new life into which she has come. The legend of the Payone moth, that a moment eince was a dull chrysalls and now is a spirituelle butterfly waving its gaudy wings and sipping delight from every flower, seems re realized and made matter of fact.

Her story is, Indeed, a strange one. In 1960 Mr. 'Authouy Moncrieff, n cadet of the old and aristocratic house of that name of Hampshire in England, arrived in Philadelphia, and soon afterward mar-ried the beautiful Miss Blatchford, then a reigning belle. Indeed, Mrs. Anthony Moncrieff remains one of the queens of society, though grief has turned her huir white as silver. In 1861, Jessie, their only child, was born. After the child's birth, Mrs. Moncrieff's health failed her, and she threatened to become a permanent invalid. She was sent to Italy and Greece, and speut a winter on the Nile, and traveled elsewhere, but without substantial restoration of her health. In the apring of 1865, in accordance with the advice of physiciaus, Mr. Moncrieff took her and the child and nurse to America, and going directly to Sault Ste. Marie, plunged luto the resinous plue woods of the Cauodian wilderness In the west of Ontario, where, building a lodge on the borders of a email lake, he and his family roughed is in true backwoods style for a season. The country was full of Chippewa Indians, but these were invariably friendly, and besides Mr. Moncriell had a sufficient retinue of servants to insure his safety. The rather severe regimen had the most beneficial effect upon Mrs. Moncrleff's health; the threatened decline was entirely averted, the roses returned to her cheeks and her form gainel a charming emboupoint which it has ever since retained. By the end of August she was so well that preparations were made for a speedy return to Philadelphia. At this moment a frightful calamity fell upon the happy family. Just before dusk one evening the nurse was walking with the child, a sprightly little girl of 4 years, by the edge of the lake, when she was selzed from behind, gagged, bliadfoided, bound and tied to a tree. So suddeu and uuexpected was the assault that she had not time to utter a single cry. She remained there for nearly two hours, when, being missed, search wee made for her, and she was found as described, almost insensible from fright and the cruel tightness of the ligatures. The child was missing. The se, an entirely trustworthy woman, no soonee recovered to consciousness than she feli into a hysterical condition that prevented her trout giving any but the most incoherent replies to the questions of the agonized parents. She really had nothing to tell, however, except that her captors seemel to be Indians, and had upparently escaped with the child lu a canoe.

A hue and cry was raised, immediate pursuit was made, and all that love and money could do was done to recover the little Jessie, but all in valu. Not the slightest trace of her could be found, nor was anything further ever heard of her until a fe ' days ago. The Indiaus, who were thought to have carried her off, were placed under the strictest surveillance, and a large force of detectives employed, but without avail. Ten years later, in 1875, a Canadian halfbreed, named Francois Bois d'Arc, a man of desperate character, diel at New Westminster on Frazar river, Victoria, and before dying confessed that he and another half breed named Jean Greuse, dead long since, had carried the little girl off. The story he told was that the two had been hunting in Manitoba, and had been hired by a dark man, a stranger and u foreigner, for 2,000 guineas, to do this very work. They had ridden from the Lake of the Woods across the country avoiding sattlements, and had camped near the Moncrieil loigs tor u week before the opportunity occurred which they sought. In escaping they had ridden straight to Lake Superior and there em-barked on the vessel wuiting for them. There was a woman on the vessel who received the chill from the dark in in. Francois and Jean were paid, put ashore at Grant Fortage and advice I to leave that country, which they did at once, going to California. Francols thought it was the dark man's purpose to drown the child in the lake. This story, so improbable in itself, was saited closely by Mr. Monerieff's further was done.

I pass over the terrible enfferings of the parents so atroclously bereaved. Mra Moncrieff might have lost her boalth ugain, but that her husband's condition absorbed all her faculties. He, when he was compelled to abundon all hope of recovering his chili, fell into a state of melancholy that came very near involving the loss of his mlud. Mrs. Moncrieff returned to Philadelphin with him, and only conquered the madness which threatened him after two yours of berole struggle, in which the devoted wife put away privily the bereaved mother's woe lest it should injure her husband's chances. It was then her hair turned white.

When he recovered sufficiently, Mr. Moncrieff was persuaded to outer business, and so, gradually, time the consoler, had an opportunity to do its work. The bereaves couple returned to society, and regained the serenity and composure of ordinary life, though it is said Mrs. Moncrieff could never see a child of Jewle's age when lost without the tenrs coming to her eyes.

Just one week ago, when Mr. Monerleff and Mr. Monerleff had been only a couple of days returned to town from celebrating the Christmas festivities, a carriage drove up to their door, and a couple of cards were handed in. They wore those of the Reman Catholic bishop of Philadelphia and Father Guiseppe Franciul, S. J., rector of the Academy of the Sacred Heart, Chatoau Riches, province of Quebec, Canada. The reverend gentlemen, who said they came upon business of the utmost Importance, were invited in, and received by Mr. Moncrieff, who is a personal friend of the bishop. The bishop usked if Mrs. Mon-crieff out less a realisation passant like.

The oil scout is not too good to be compre hended, but he seems to be imperfectly understood by the outside public. He is ueither an Indian-fighter nor a detective, nor is he a cross between the two, as some of the story-papers and even the metropolitan dailies have pictured him. He is simply an expert in all matters that pertain to drilling and handling oil wells, and is employed to get information (usually under difficulties) for speculative or other purposes. A knowledge of woodcraft helps him on his way through the wild woodland, where many test-weils are drilled, and to succeed he must be a good judge of human nature and have the sleek wey of the polished city interviewer. If the detective instinct is strong in him and his min I is inventive and he can be patient and pay close attention to what may seem unimportant details, he has muny of the elements which go to make up the successful scout.

The oil scout who renders valuable ser-vices is often forced to arrive at conclusions from sisnder indicators, and in sending a message from a wild-cat well one mistake might cost his suployer more money than a scout could expect to earn during a lifetime. Though a life of hardship, it is strangely at tractive to most of the neu who follow it, and the portion of a man's career speut scouting is likely to be better remembered than what has gone before or may come after. It was not an uncommou thing for a field mian during the busy years of 1882 and 1883 to keep his boots on four days at a stretch, and find refreshing slumber on a plie of casing or on the damp ground under the hemiocks. Many nights have the scouts watched the stars twinkle as they reciined near and sometimes lustde the guard lines, listening for the faintest sound from the invitified weils

The professional oil scout first because a factor in oil operations in 1577. He was ushered in with the great Bradford field, became prominent during the Cherry Grove excitement, and has since been in eparably connected with all developments that have exerted an influence on speculative values

> Mendalssolm Making Music. [St. Nicholas.]

Mendelssohn delighted in the open air and the beautiful acenery. When he was 20, he staid for some time at Chestee, where he was entertained by a Mr. Taylor. His leved afterward to tell of the charm which the meadow and brook, the trees and grass had sid to saw ed bies to recompanion exerting and horizont transfer companion and transfer to specification and the wast full of music and exerting and exerting and exerting and exerting and exercise the wastern and the wastern and the wastern and exercise the wastern and for him there. ile spent much time iu was very fond of musical idea to him. He was very fond of carnations, and he set a bunch of them to music in the album of a daughter of his becoming rector of my Canadian academy in 1966, I was principal of a college of my host, with a drawing of the flowers over the notes; not torgetting to set some delicate "It remains for use to tell you Jessie's story," said Father Francial "Before arpeggios in the usu-ic for the scent of the llowers. On seeing the younger sister with some beli shaped flowers in her hair, he said that the fairies might dance on the trumets, and he set them to a capriccio.

He never tired of merrymaking, and one afternoon toward dusk, he with a number of young people, was one of a happy young company that was picuicking in a thicket. Some one gayly proposel a fire; and all began to drag the boughs and twigs into place, so that soon they had a fine bouefles. While still lingering around it, Meu-delsachn began to ask for some nusic, but nothing could be found save a worn out flidde of the gardener's. Mendelssohn, all undismayed, began to play, shouting with faughter at his performance; but soou there was a bush in the chat and sport, and the whole party sat spell bound at the lovely music which he drew from even that despised fiddle.

He would sit for bours, improving dauce tunes, and liked nothing better than to entertain his friends with his music. He always looked back on his visit to Chester as one of the brightest spots in a bright

Three Kinds of Bears in Colorado. [Denver Tribane-Republican.]

There are theco kin is of bears poculiae to this section. They are the range bear, the chinamon bear and the black bear. The range bear more closely resembles the grizzly than any other variety found in Colo rado. The grizzly proper is found in the Sierra Navaias

The cinnamon bear is extremely vicious; it is the worst of its kind to uttack and the hardest to kill. It derives its name from the cinnatuon color of its fur, which varies from light to extremely dark shades.

The skin of the black bear is considered the most valuable for rugs and robes, and it is the most easily domesticated animal of the whole bear family. The cinnamou and grizzly bears are vicious from the time they are 6 months old, and no amount of taining and petting will have any effect on them. They are liable to uttack those who befriended them at the most unexpected moments, and make poor returns to those who endeavor to win them with affection. They little attention to the stings of boes, unless the latter attack their eyes, as they are thickly furred, and their skin is tough and difficult to pierce.

Accommodating a Landlord.

[Life.]
"I like the house." he said, "but it is too large for my family, and I would want to ent it in conjunction with another party." "I don't know about that," replied the landlord, dubiously. "I would much prefer that the house be let alone."

"Very weil, then, I will let it nione," and a little later he was looking at another
